

Dangerous Goods Air Transport Guidance During the COVID-19 Pandemic

Dear Industry Colleagues,

The COVID-19 pandemic has significantly disrupted the way the air transportation of dangerous goods is taking place.

In order to ensure the safe handling of dangerous goods in air shipping, IATA is pleased to offer, effective immediately, temporary access to DG AutoCheck including the online edition of the 61st DGR to freight forwarders. This trial offer is free of charge.

What is DG AutoCheck?

DG AutoCheck is a digital solution that assists airlines, ground handlers and freight forwarders in automatically checking the compliance of the Shipper's Declaration for Dangerous Goods (DGD) against all relevant provisions of the IATA Dangerous Goods Regulations. It also facilitates the verification of the packages' marks and labels on dangerous goods consignments. The online platform will also provide an online access to the 61st edition of the DGR manual.

Please visit the DG AutoCheck webpage for more information.

LIMITED TIME OFFER: FREE OF CHARGE TO FREIGHT FORWARDERS

Until June 30, air forwarders can trial DG AutoCheck and access online the 61st edition of the DGR manual for free. However, you must act quickly as trial subscription quantities are limited to the first 500 organizations that will contact IATA. In order to benefit from this offer, please complete this agreement form and send a signed copy to dgautocheck@iata.org stating your interest. An IATA team member will contact you shortly afterwards. IATA retains the right to reject any application for any reason.

Please note that these temporary subscriptions are limited to three (3) users free of charge. Companies that require more than three (3) users should contact IATA at dgautocheck@iata.org. Other conditions apply, you can view them here.
